

Unit 8 : Halloween

Halloween is a time for ghosts, ghouls, vampires, skeletons and things that go bump in the night. The dead come to life, mummies walk the streets and witches fly through the air on brooms. Cemeteries fill with howls and screeches as zombies crawl from their shallow graves. Halloween night is the most haunting night of the year, unless, of course, you are a child.

Children love Halloween. They can dress up as their favorite creature, person, or even thing. Some make their own costumes out of old clothes in the attic, while others take the easy route and buy them at the store. Many even paint their faces and wear wigs to really try and fool people into thinking they are someone else.

Though a lot of the fun is in dressing up and acting out, kids mostly do it for the free candy. Not only do they get to goof off for a night and walk the streets till the late hours, but also they get rewarded for doing so by receiving free candy. Some people make the children sing a song or tell a joke to get a treat, but most of the time a simple "trick or treat" will do.

Although it is a lot of fun for the kids, it is the parents who have to put up with the sugar- induced fit the children might throw when they are told to go to bed. The teachers will have to tolerate hyperactive kids, too, until their stash runs out. But the real nightmare is left for just one person...the dentist!
